

Finding Commentary

Use this form to search within your subscribed commentary sources. This may include services such as Halsbury's Laws of Australia, Cross on Evidence, Ford's Principles of Corporations Law, and Carter on Contract, depending upon your subscription.

To search for Commentary, click on the Commentary tab, below the red line, on the Toolbar.

You can select the source(s) that you want to search across by clicking on the dropdown arrow in Sources (1).

Now select the field(s) in which you are going to define your search. For example:

- Search Terms (2) will search across the full text of your source(s). This will search for words wherever they appear in a document.
- References to Legislation (3) will find commentary that discusses a particular piece of legislation. Type your query in this field in the following format – Corporations Act w/s s 588g.
- Commentary Headings (4) will search across the headings and sub-headings within your source(s). Searching in Headings allows you to obtain entire sections of relevant text, and is a great way to obtain results that are highly specific to the issue you are searching for.

Focussing on relevant results by using Result Groups

You may often find your search yields an unmanageably large number of results.

When searching in Commentary, using the Results Groups allows you to focus on the more relevant results.

This feature allows you to determine where your search results have come from within your subscription set, and then focus on those that come from publications which are relevant to your particular search.

Browsing an individual Source

- Click on the Commentary tab (1), below the red line, on the Toolbar (Figure A)
- Click on Browse on the left hand side of the search form (2)
- Select the Source (3) you wish to browse - this opens the screen you see in Figure B
- Click on the + symbol (4) beside any heading, and the sub-headings will appear below
- Click on any Heading (5) within this publication to view the contents of that section
- To browse the Index for a selected source simply click on the dropdown arrow next to View (6) after you have selected the source you want to browse.
