New author information — Geoffrey Code

Geoff Code is a principal solicitor with the VGSO. Most of his practice is planning and environment law on behalf of many Victorian Government agency clients, including the Minister of Planning. Geoff has worked as a town planner for municipal councils and regional planning bodies before taking a leading role on behalf of the Victorian Government in the preparation of the Planning and Environment Act 1987. He was then closely involved in most amendments to that Act and most state-wide changes to planning schemes until 2000. Other areas of administrative law specialisation in Geoff's practice include information privacy and freedom of information. Geoff is also a member of the Government's Prostitution Control Act Advisory Committee.
