The Search Term Map in Lexis Advance

The Search term Map provides a graphical view of occurrences of search terms or phrases in a given search result, and allows the user to toggle through hits in context without leaving the search result.

This meets some frequently expressed needs:

- I want to see more hits in context, without leaving my search results.
- I want to know if my search terms are found in my top search results.

Using the Search Term Map in Search Results

We initially display the passage determined by our relevance algorithms to be the best extract. This is indicated by the blue star.

The screenshot displays a search results page for the case Byrne & Frew v Australian Airlines Ltd. At the top, there are search filters: limitations, unfair dismissal, and damages, along with a link to Show/hide term highlights. Below the filters are icons for document actions: a square, a folder, a printer, an envelope, a download arrow, and a document icon.

A summary of the case is provided: Employment — Termination of employment — Whether termination was harsh, unjust or unreasonable — Allegations of thieving.

Below the summary is a Search Term Map, a horizontal bar with colored segments representing different terms. A blue star is placed on the map, pointing to a specific passage. The passage is titled (1994) 120 ALR 274 and contains the following text: "... as cl 11(a) forms part of the contract. In Bostik (Australia) Pty Ltd v Gorgevski (No 1), Sheppard and Heerey JJ (at 32-3) noted the common law principles that limit the amount that can be recovered for damages for wrongful dismissal but concluded that they did not assist the employer in that case. They said (at 33): The common law principles do not assist the company in ...".
